Period Architecture Celebrates 10 Years in Business

September 2020: This month marks 10 years in business for Period Architecture, a Malvern based architectural firm. Period Architecture has grown from a three-person practice into an award-winning architectural firm with residential and commercial commissions along the east coast and beyond.

Remarking on this year's 10th anniversary, Co-Founder and President Joseph Mackin says, "We're thrilled to celebrate such a tremendous milestone as a company. With a renewed appreciation for life at home, we're delighted to remain an advocate for enduring architectural design and create beautifully livable places."

In celebration of this milestone, Period Architecture would like to acknowledge and extend a heartfelt thank you to their clients and partners of the last ten years. "Our clients and their trust in our vision have been the driving force behind our success throughout the last ten years. Their support has inspired us to design not just beautifully crafted homes, but places to create treasured memories," says Co-Founder and Vice-President Jeffrey Dolan.

With commissions in Pennsylvania, Delaware, New Jersey and throughout the eastern seaboard, Period Architecture has remained a committed steward of the landscape and vernacular architecture since 2010.
